Identify and build invaluable social wellness skills

We all benefit from learning to respect others, solve problems, manage stress, set goals, work with others, and master other social wellness skills. The BASC™ Social Wellness Skills System (BASC™ SWSS) is a method of building responsive resiliency in the development of children and adolescents through promoting behavioral, social, and emotional wellness. This flexible tool was developed by the BASC authors to fit seamlessly into your larger behavior and student wellness system.

The BASC SWSS components are designed for use as a system to identify an individual's strengths and areas of needed growth. Although some of the behaviors and skills included in the BASC SWSS components may be related to symptoms associated with common behavioral and emotional disorders, the BASC SWSS is designed to measure social wellness by emphasizing skills related to establishing and maintaining relationships with others and those related to general wellbeing.

The BASC SWSS Components

Teacher, Student, and Parent Short Forms
