

Hi Parents,

We are so thankful for you and your child's participation in the BASC-4 Standardization! An essential part of the BASC-4 data collection project is the teacher's perspective. You can help us by encouraging your child's teacher to participate - it can make all the difference!

Teacher participation is important because teachers observe students in structured environments, which offers insights into a child's learning, behavior, and social interactions in school. Children may behave differently at home and school, so teacher observations help bridge the gap between these environments.

The information collected will help improve the BASC-4 rating scales, benefiting countless students for years to come! The teacher rating form is for research purposes only and will not impact your child or their schooling in any way.

How You Can Help:

- Brainstorm! Think through which teacher would be the best fit to fill out the form. This could be your child's primary classroom teacher, but it could also be someone else at school who spends time with your child, like a specials teacher, reading specialist, or classroom aide.
- Introduce Us! A simple introduction from YOU can open the door for teacher participation. Sharing some general information and letting them know a rating form will arrive in their email soon will help. Be sure to let them know they can complete the form at a time that works best for them!
- Your Examiner Has the Answers! Let the teacher know that the person you are working with, an Examiner, is available to answer any questions they may have about this project (i.e., type of questions, compensation, etc.).

We appreciate your support! Participating in research is a meaningful way for your family to help future students get the support they need.
